Welcome to the Capitol Hill neighborhood, home of the US Capitol Building, Library of Congress, Supreme Court, Union Station, RFK Stadium, the Navy Yard, the largest historic district in Washington, DC and so much more. The Hill is a wonderful discovery and destination; a delightful community of quaint shops, superb eateries, parks, and charming row houses.

"The Hill," originally known as Jenkins Hill in the 18th century, was viewed by DC designer Pierre L'Enfant as a fitting pedestal for the Congress. Thus, the Capitol was built atop this hill, which now – looking westward – majestically surveys much of the federal city and the National Mall. To the east, the Capitol is surrounded by the neighborhood that proudly bears its name, Capitol Hill.

The Capitol Hill Historic District was placed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1976 and was expanded in 1992. It includes over 8,000 buildings. Most of the primary buildings date from the late 19th and early 20th centuries, though many were built in the period between the 1820s until the end of the Civil War. Their architectural styles range from the Federal Period forward, with particular representation in the late Victorian era. For more information please view the Capitol Hill Restoration Society's website at www.chrs.org.

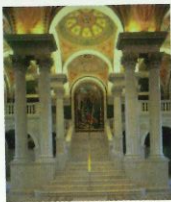

The US Capitol - No trip to "The Hill" is complete without a visit to our national legislature. Free guided tours are offered from 9:00am to 4:30pm, Monday-Saturday, and include the Rotunda, National Statuary Hall and House & Senate chambers. Visitors must obtain tour passes on a first-come, first-served basis at the Capitol Guide Service kiosk located across from the US Botanic Garden on the Capitol grounds (near the intersection of 1st Street, SW and Independence Avenue). Ticket sales begin at 9:00am daily. Maximum tour size is 40. Call the Capitol at (202) 225-6827 or the offices of your congressional representatives for more information.

Right near Capitol South Metro (corner of 2nd and D Streets, SE), a real good place to pause and mingle with congressional staffers is Tortilla Coast. A little ways from the Senate side, try out two proven watering holes, Kellys Irish Times and the baseball-themed Senators Sports Grille.

The US Botanic Garden - Open daily from 10am to 5pm. This flora sanctuary offers visitors lots of relaxation and plant knowledge. Established by Congress in 1820, the USBG is one of the oldest botanic gardens in North America. Public tours, seasonal displays, and lectures offered.

The Library of Congress - Created in 1800 and reestablished in 1815 with a donation of books from Thomas Jefferson, today it is the world's largest library housing nearly 128 million items on approximately 530 miles of bookshelves.

Free guided tours of the restored 1897 Thomas Jefferson Building, including the Great Hall, are available Monday-Saturday at various time intervals. The Jefferson Building houses the visitors' center (open Monday-Saturday 10:00am to 5:30pm) as well as various exhibits. Nearby, the James Madison Building also houses Library exhibits for the public and is open Monday-Friday 8:30am to 9:30pm and Saturday 8:30am to 6pm. (202) 707-8000.

Only a stone's throw away from the Library is Café Recess – great for a quick morning or lunch meal, and Hawk 'n' Dove for great happy hours, good grub and lots of sports coverage.

The US Supreme Court Building -

Supreme Court Building

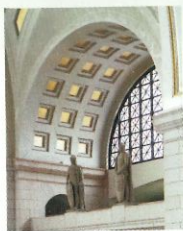

Opened in 1935 (previously the Supreme Court occupied space in the Capitol), where visitors are urged to enter to learn about the Judicial Branch. You can observe the court in session and hear oral arguments, October through April. Exhibits and a film illustrate the history of the court, and there are free lectures when the court is not in session at half past every hour. Statues, sculptures and friezes adorn the court's Corinthian architecture depicting justice, liberty and equality. Open Monday-Friday, 9:00am to 4:30pm. (202) 479-3030.

Not far from the Capitol complex is Union Station, one of the most visited attractions in Washington. This magnificent structure serves as a major transportation point (terminals for Amtrak and local trains and buses), hosts a large array of shops and eateries, has a movie theater, and is a venue for exhibitions, galas and even presidential inaugural balls.

Union Station

With its breathtaking interior of gilded barrel-vaulted ceilings and Roman statuary, Union Station is truly a sight to behold.

Completed in 1908, it is considered to be one of the world's finest examples of beaux-arts architecture. At the time of its opening, the Station was the largest train station in the world. Extensive restoration work was completed in 1988. While at Union Station, buy a flower for a friend at KaBloom and watch the hustle and bustle of locals and tourists as you dine at America. Union Station is open 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, with store hours Monday-Saturday 10:00am to 9:00pm, and Sunday 12:00pm to 6:00pm. (202) 371-9441.

Consider taking a tour of Washington from Union Station. Check out the many tour companies at the Union Station information desk, including Tourmobile Sightseeing and City Segway Tours, which offers day and night tours on self-balancing, personal transportations devices. When your feet get tired, hop on the Circulator, the bus whose loops include the Smithsonian and National Galleries, Georgetown, Southwest Waterfront and the Convention Center.

The semi-circle in front of Union Station has every US state and territory flag flying in a collage of colors. A fountain honoring Christopher Columbus and a Freedom Bell are in the plaza in front of the station.

Between the Capitol and Union Station at the intersection of Louisiana and New Jersey Avenue, NW, you will find the Japanese American Memorial. The Memorial, dedicated in 2000, commemorates both the sacrifice of those Japanese-Americans who fought in World War II, and the painful experience of those Japanese-Americans who underwent forced relocation to government camps from 1942-45. (202) 530-0015.

Across from Union Station, the family-friendly, highly interactive National Postal Museum is well worth a visit. The Museum, opened in 1993, is located in the 1914-constructed historic City Post Office Building that served as DC's main post office from 1914 until 1986. Showcasing the world's largest collection of postal history, artifacts and stamps, the Museum also houses a research library, a stamp store and museum shop. Open daily 10:00am to 5:30pm. (202) 633-5555.

Moving east from the front of Union Station, if you continue along Massachusetts Avenue toward Stanton Park you're in for a culinary treat. Union Pub, Lounge 201, The White Tiger, Two Quail and Café Berlin are fine examples of local eateries and pubs.

At the corner of 2nd Street and Constitution Avenue, NE is one of the oldest houses on Capitol Hill, the Sewall-Belmont House, historic headquarters of the National Woman's Party and a National Historic Landmark. Built in 1800, the House was partially burned by the British during the War of 1812 and was restored shortly thereafter. The museum inside features exhibits, sculptures, portraits and artifacts depicting the campaign for suffrage and the struggle for equal rights for women. Open Tuesday-Friday, 11:00am-3:00pm, Saturday 12:00pm-4:00pm. Donation suggested. (202) 546-1210.

Major Attractions...

Nearby, at 320 A Street, NE, is the Frederick Douglass Museum and Hall of Fame for Caring Americans. Frederick Douglass, renowned orator, author and abolitionist – whose first home in DC makes up part of this historic property – lived here between 1871-1877, later moving to Cedar Hill in Washington's Anacostia community. Open on irregular basis. (202) 544-6130.

The Folger Shakespeare Library, at 201 East Capitol Street, is one of the Hill's treasures. Founded by Henry Clay Folger, a millionaire Standard Oil executive who devoted a great deal of his life to the acquisition of Shakespearean materials. The Library is home to the world's largest collection of Shakespeare's printed works, rare Renaissance books, manuscripts, paintings, costumes and musical instruments, and also houses the Folger Theatre and the Folger Consort. The visitors' center is open Monday-Saturday 10:00am-4:00pm. Free tours offered at 11:00am (and again at 1:00pm on Sat.). For performance or general info call (202) 544-4600.

For a great combination of outdoor activity, flea markets, shops and eateries, Eastern Market Row is a must – especially on weekends when in full swing. Built in 1873, the Market (located on 7th Street, SE between C and N. Carolina Avenue, SE) is the only remaining public market in DC. Inside and out there are merchants, craftspeople and flower vendors, and farmers selling their wares and fresh produce while musicians entertain. Eastern Market's inside is open Tuesday-Sunday from morning to 5:00pm; the outside and flea markets across the street are open Saturday-Sunday from morning to 5:00pm.

Not far from Eastern Market is the federal city's oldest commercial corridor, 8th Street, SE, known as Barracks Row, located between Pennsylvania Avenue and M Street, SE. Marine Barracks Washington, DC, established in 1801, is the oldest post of the US Marine Corps and was the workplace from 1880 to 1892 of the composer and conductor, John Philip Sousa. On Friday evenings from May to August the Barracks presents weekly parades and free band performances. (202) 433-6060.

All along 8th Street there are plenty of wonderful shops and cafes. And just off 8th Street you will find historic Christ Church and the Capitol Hill Arts Workshop – which has an art gallery and evening events.

The south end of 8th Street ends at the Washington Navy Yard, featuring the Navy Museum and Navy Art Gallery. At the Navy Yard, you may also climb aboard and tour the destroyer USS Barry. The Navy Museum features interactive exhibits guiding you through naval history and is open Monday-Friday 9:00am to 5:00pm and Saturday-Sunday from 10:00am to 5:00pm, but reservations are necessary. (202) 433-6897

Navy Museum

Another patriotic stop would be the National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial. Dedicated in 1991, it honors all of American federal, state and local law enforcers and contains the names of more than 14,000 officers killed in the line of duty. The Memorial is outside the confines of the Hill (but close) on the 600 block of E Street, NW between 4th and 5th Streets, NW and has a visitors' center at 605 E Street, NW which is open Monday-Friday 9:00am to 5:00pm, Saturday 10:00am to 5:00pm, and Sunday noon to 5:00pm. (202) 737-3213

Southwest DC's waterfront is home to DC's fish market, Titanic Memorial and DC's most elegant dinner-cruising vessel – the Odyssey III (888) 741-0281. More 'inland,' try a family-owned seafood landmark over four decades old – Market Inn Restaurant. ■

CHAMPS

The Capitol Hill Map is a publication of the Capitol Hill Association of Merchants and Professionals (CHAMPS), an organization of business and community leaders dedicated to building a strong economic environment on Capitol Hill. We are the association that represents businesses in one of the fastest growing and vibrant business communities in the country.

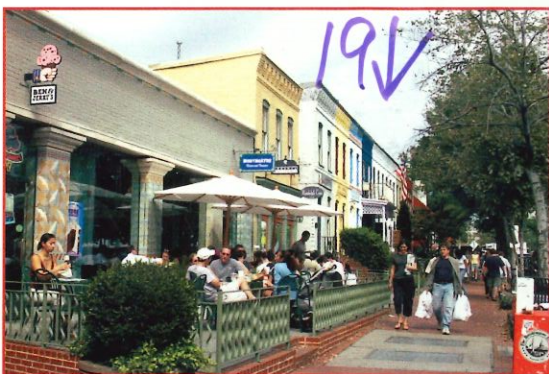

Founded in 1983, CHAMPS represents over 250 businesses, organizations and associations. CHAMPS conducts business development seminars and special education programs to keep its members abreast of important business topics and issues. We also sponsor Second Saturday, a monthly art and retail open house.

CHAMPS was a founding member of the Capitol Hill Business Improvement District, which employs the men and women in blue whom you see around Capitol Hill.

If you are a visitor to Our Nation's Neighborhood™ and want more information on where to shop, dine and visit on Capitol Hill, please check out www.capitolhillmap.com (sponsored by MSW Interactive Designs, LLC). If you are a business owner or resident and would like to join CHAMPS, view our online directory of members, or check out our calendar of events, please view www.champsdcc.org.

HISTORIC BARRACKS ROW

Historic Barracks Row is a popular attraction for both locals and tourists. It is a commercially vibrant area of Capitol Hill with 152 businesses thriving in this busy part of the federal city – including restaurants, outdoor cafes, shops, theatres and so much more. The Tour of Duty Heritage Trail is a self-guided tour, interpreting the history of 8th Street, Marine Barracks, Navy Yard, the south side of Capitol Hill and the Eastern Market. Follow the trail on your own or with the help of a tour brochure available at various locations. Marine Barracks Washington is located in the heart of Barracks Row and offers free performances every Friday night from May through August. Reservations are recommended. Navy Yard is located on the south end of Barracks Row. Public entrance is on 9th and M Streets Gate. The Navy Museum holds a large collection of maritime history and artifacts. Don't miss the self-guided tour of the U.S.S. Barry too. Public entrance is located at 11th and O Streets, SE. The Eastern Market the last of Washington's 19th century markets to remain in continuous operation, was built in 1873 and designed by architect Adolf Cluss. This commercial and neighborhood hub is open Tuesday through Sunday, with the Outdoor Flea Market open on Saturdays and Sundays.

A guided tour of the Hill neighborhood is available twice a month on the second and fourth Saturdays from April through October. Go to www.washingtonwalks.com and click on "Our Walks" for information. Tours begin at 1:30pm and cost $10 cash (age 3 and under free). Reservations are not needed. For more information visit www.barracksrow.org.

H STREET CORRIDOR

H Street is one of Capitol Hill's oldest main streets. With roots from the 1900s, H Street was once the second busiest commercial corridor in Washington and hosted many centers of commerce. The city's first car dealership opened on H Street, as did the Sears Roebuck. As a trolley line, H Street provided access to great retailers in its heyday. Torn apart during the 1960s, H Street, like other urban corridors, suffered severe economic ruin from riots, burned-out buildings and suburban sprawl. Revival of the H Street corridor, a combined effort of community groups, developers, and the City's Main Street program, is now underway. Revival of H Street, an important link between downtown, Northeast neighborhoods, and suburban Maryland, means job opportunities, retail access, transit improvements, and more housing. Current projects include:

Station Place: 2nd and F Streets, NE. Future 1.6 million sq. ft. home of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Burnham Place: A large-scale mixed-use office and hotel project that utilizes the air-rights to the north of H Street over the rail yard.

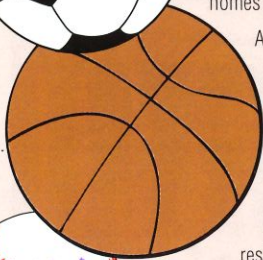

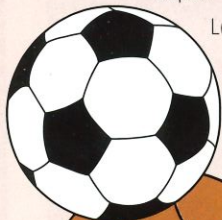

Union Square III: The final building—12 stories—of the Union Square complex, offers a prime location in the Capitol Hill submarket.

Atlas Performing Arts Center: The redevelopment and restoration of the historic Atlas Theater will include two stages, retail space, classrooms, and Joy of Motion dance studio.

Coming soon to H Street Corridor, mid to late 2006, will be new dining, entertainment venues and retail shops.

DC SPORTS

Capitol Hill is home to RFK Stadium which hosts Major League Soccer's 4-time MLS Cup champs, D.C. United, and Major League Baseball's newest franchise, the Washington Nationals. In the next few years, both of these teams will have new homes in South East Washington; D.C. United in Anacostia at Poplar Point, and the Nationals along the Anacostia River Waterfront in the South Capitol Street Corridor. D.C. is also home to the Verizon Center, formerly the MCI Center, which is located at 7th and F Streets, NW. Area residents and millions of tourists experience a unique combination of sports and entertainment everyday. The Verizon Center hosts NBA's Wizards, NHL's Capitals, WNBA's Mystics, the Georgetown Hoyas, plus major concerts, family shows and other sporting events.
